Course Description
Elegy is perhaps the most traditional of poetic genres, yet it remains a vital space for cultural reflection, transmission, and reinvention. For friends or partners, public figures or collective ideas, vulnerable social groups, endangered species or even a dying planet, the elegiac voice still performs a significant function in contemporary private and public discourse. By looking closely at examples from different traditions (in English translation), the course will both trace the developments of this poetic genre, from its ancient roots up to the digital age, and open up to broader cultural issues: the politics of memory and mourning, identity formation, online afterlives, negotiations with personal and collective past(s), as well as environmental emergencies and postcolonial urgencies. Today, artistic practices — not only in writing, but also in visual and performing arts (reenactment and archival strategies are widespread in contemporary art) — appear to be increasingly committed to rethinking our relations with the past, with a growing effort to do justice to what or who is no longer here and bear witness to their past existence. The elegiac mode thus becomes a kind of discourse for reckoning with love, grief, and social power, which needs to be re-discussed in a transcultural and transtemporal perspective.
Requirements
Students are required to attend all classes, to come to class prepared and with the relevant materials and textbooks. Participation consists in contributing productively to class discussion in a respectful manner, and in demonstrating a sound knowledge of the texts assigned.

Course Readings
Students are required to purchase the following text:
All other materials (poems, videos, artworks and theoretical writings) will be shared on Google Classroom.

Use of Electronics
Please note that in seminars we will work on printed texts: NO COMPUTERS OR TABLETS allowed in class. Texts which are made available in digital format should be printed for use in class. The use of electronic devices during class time is only allowed for disability accommodation. If you have a disability accommodation please inform your instructor at the beginning of the course.

Academic Integrity
Bard College Berlin maintains the staunchest regard for academic integrity and expects good academic practice from students in their studies. Instances in which students fail to meet the expected standards of academic integrity will be dealt with under the Code of Student Conduct, Section 14.3 (Academic Misconduct) in the Student Handbook.

Attendance
Please note that attendance at ALL classes is expected. More than two absences (that is absences from two sessions of 90 minutes) in a semester will significantly affect the participation grade for the course. Late arrival or leaving during class time will count as an absence. Missing more than 30% of all sessions may result in failing the course. Please consult the Student Handbook for regulations governing periods of illness or leaves of absence.

If you cannot attend class because of a COVID-19 related issue, online alternatives will be made available, including remote participation, asynchronous discussion, and/or alternative assignments (video presentations or recorded dialogues with other students). If necessary, guest seminars will be held via Zoom. Any further forms of remote participation that become necessary during the semester will be communicated via email. During any online session it is strongly encouraged to have your camera on.

Writing Assignments
Midterm essay (2000 words), due 23:59 Saturday, October 17
Final essay (3000 words), due 23:59 Friday, December 18
All assignments must be completed in order to pass the course.
Policy on Late Submission of Papers
From the Student Handbook on the submission of essays:
Essays that are up to 24 hours late will be downgraded one full grade (from B+ to C+, for example). Instructors are not obliged to accept essays that are more than 24 hours late. Where an instructor agrees to accept a late essay, it must be submitted within four weeks of the deadline and cannot receive a grade of higher than C. Thereafter, the student will receive a failing grade for the assignment.
