

SO292 SEXUAL VIOLENCE, GENDER AND WAR

Seminar Leader: Ajla Škrbić Email: a.skrbic@berlin.bard.edu Office Hours: by appointment

Course Description

What is the role of sexual violence and specifically gender-based violence in contexts of armed conflict? What kinds of discourses circulate in regard to this phenomenon, and what repercussions do these have for understandings of war, for subsequent criminal proceedings, and for efforts at peacebuilding? Why is an analysis of such discourses essential for developing effective safeguards against conflict-related sexual violence (CRSV)? How do feminists intervene in the fields of international law, international relations and security studies? What is the range of feminist views on these areas of expertise?

Throughout the course, we will examine such questions using both theoretical texts and case studies, particularly from the former Yugoslav states. The lectures will cover the historical and political contexts that led to the recognition and condemnation of CRSV on a global scale, providing students with a comprehensive understanding of the topic. Additionally, we will critically evaluate the practices of domestic and international courts in CRSV cases by comparing those from post-Yugoslav states with the cases heard by international courts.

Upon completion of the course, students will have a thorough understanding of CRSV and the instruments available for combatting such crimes. Moreover, they will comprehend the impact of gender on the commission, prosecution and punishment of CRSV.

Requirements

Academic Integrity

Bard College Berlin maintains the highest standards of academic integrity and expects students to adhere to these standards at all times. Instances in which students fail to meet the expected standards of academic integrity will be dealt with under the Code of Student Conduct, Section 14.3 (Academic Misconduct) in the Student Handbook.

Attendance

Attendance at all classes is a crucial part of the education offered by Bard College Berlin. To account for minor circumstances, two absences from twice-per-week courses or the equivalent (e.g. one absence from a once-per-week course) should not affect the participation grade or require documentation.

Bard College Berlin may not offer credit for any course in which a student has missed more than 30% of classes, regardless of the reasons for the absences. The full Bard College Berlin attendance policy can be found in the Student Handbook, Section 2.8.

Assessment

Assignments

The assignments for this course consist of thoughtful and constructive discussions in class, a written mid-semester exam, a paper and a presentation.

- (1) Students are expected to do their readings and come to class prepared, actively participate in class discussions and present their ideas and opinions. The classroom is a safe environment, and students are encouraged to express their opinions and comments freely. If students ever feel differently, they should not hesitate to bring it to the attention of the seminar leader.
- (2) A mid-semester exam (4 March 2024) evaluates the understanding of fundamental concepts, principles and discussions related to CRSV, as covered up to the current point in the course.
- (3) The topics for the papers are determined at the beginning of the semester, and students work on their assigned papers throughout the semester. This assignment aims to motivate students to explore diverse materials related to sexual violence, gender and war, encompassing original case studies. The papers should center on a thorough analysis of the sources and their relevance to the class discussions. The goal is to enhance students' ability to critically analyze these sources and to facilitate connecting the course content to real-world contexts. The papers should not exceed a total word count of 5000. Submissions, due by 10 May 2024, should incorporate insights arising from the feedback provided during the paper presentations.
- (4) Paper presentations take place before paper submissions; at specified times communicated to students at the beginning of the semester. The purpose of these presentations is for students to share their draft papers with the class for discussion. Presentations are expected to be informative and engaging, focusing on the research question, main line of argumentation and potential conclusions. Students have the freedom to choose their preferred format, whether it involves showing a clip, using or not using a PowerPoint presentation, etc. The duration of each presentation should fall within the range of 20 to 30 minutes, followed by a discussion. Active student participation in all discussions is expected.

Policy on Late Submission of Papers

Papers that are up to 24 hours late can be downgraded up to one full grade (from B+ to C+, for example). Instructors are not obliged to accept papers that are more than 24 hours late. Where a professor agrees to accept a late assignment, it should be submitted by the new deadline agreed upon by both parties. Thereafter, the student will receive a failing grade for the assignment. Grades and comments will be returned to students in a timely fashion. Students are also entitled to make an appointment to discuss paper and presentation assignments and feedback during instructors' office hours.

Students receive mid- and end-of-semester grades for their seminar work. Students are entitled to make an appointment with an instructor to discuss seminar participation, or may be asked to meet with the instructor at any stage in the semester regarding class progress.
