PS 119 Nation-States and Democracy

Seminar Leader: Boris Vormann Course Times: Wednesdays and Fridays Office Hours: By appointment Email address: b.vormann@berlin.bard.edu

Course Description

Why and how do political systems differ from one another? Which processes have led to the formation of distinct political regimes? And how do these historical variations affect politics today? In addressing these questions in a wide set of contexts, this course provides an introduction to key theoretical approaches and concepts in the comparative study of politics. The focus will be on core topics in political development such as state and nation-building, the role of the state in the economy, its relationship to civil society and processes of democratization. We will also look at different types of political regimes, electoral and party systems—and the ways in which they affect the structure, functioning, and social role of political institutions. We explore these topics from a comparative perspective in combining theoretical texts with case studies. By the end of the course, students will be able to understand important topics in domestic politics, grasp the diversity of political systems and regimes, and analyze current political developments.

Reading material

Class Reader (available at the library)

Class preparation

In preparation for class, carefully read the assigned texts and actively engage with their core arguments. Take comprehensive notes during your reading and strive to anticipate questions such as: Why do the authors present their arguments in a particular manner? How do they introduce and support their claims? Consider how their line of reasoning connects with earlier readings and discussions in the class. This proactive approach will enhance your understanding and contribute to more meaningful participation in class discussions.

Attendance

Attendance at all classes is a crucial part of the education offered by Bard College Berlin. To account for minor circumstances, two absences from twice-per-week courses or the equivalent (e.g. one absence from a once-per-week course) will not affect the participation grade or require documentation. Every unexcused additional absence from a 90-min session lowers the overall participation grade by five percentage points.

Bard College Berlin does not offer credit for any course in which a student has missed more than 30% of classes, regardless of the reasons for the absences. The full Bard College Berlin attendance policy can be found in the Student Handbook, Section 2.8.

Assignments, Grade Breakdown and Essay Deadlines

Oral

• Classroom Participation (2*15%)

This seminar requires thoughtful and active participation in class discussions and working groups. This involves consistently reflecting on current events relevant to the course's core themes. The classroom is a safe space, and you should feel free to express your arguments and comments openly. Please do not hesitate to communicate with the seminar leader if you ever feel that this environment is not being maintained.

• Case Study Presentations

Each student will present their case studies, which are also the focus of the final paper, through concise and professional presentations. Each presentation is limited to no more than 15 minutes, with time strictly enforced. The emphasis will be on presenting the puzzle, research question, the main line of argumentation and potential conclusions.

Written

All assignments must be submitted per email attachment before the respective session, please use Times New Roman pt 12, 1.5-spaced. Make sure to use Chicago Style for your bibliography and in-text citation!

• Extended Introduction (1,000 words, due March 22)

The introduction frames the puzzle and research question. It embeds them in existing literature, describes the empirical material and how it will be analyzed, and presents the (tentative) main line of argumentation in broad strokes. What have other authors argued about your theme? What are your hypotheses? Which data will you look at to make your case?

• Final Essay (4,000 words, due May 17)

The final essay is due on May 17. It will consist of an introduction, main body (that develops and substantiates your argument), and a conclusion (as well as a bibliography). Use paragraphs and subheadings to clearly structure your text.

Policy on Late Submission of Papers and Academic Integrity

Written assignments that are up to 24 hours late will be downgraded by 5 percentage points. For every additional 24 hours, five additional points will be subtracted from the grade. The instructor will not accept essays that are more than 96 hours late. Thereafter, the student will receive a failing grade for the assignment. Grades and comments will be returned to students in a timely fashion. Students are also entitled to make an appointment to discuss essay assignments and feedback during instructors' office hours.

Bard College Berlin maintains the staunchest regard for academic integrity and expects good academic practice from students in their studies. Instances in which students fail to meet the expected standards of academic integrity will be dealt with under the Code of Student Conduct, Section 14.3 (Academic Misconduct) in the Student Handbook.
