Office Hours: by appointment
Office: Top floor, K24

Course Description

This course offers a comprehensive introduction to postcolonial theory and politics by examining how colonialism and imperialism continue to shape social, political, and economic structures in the Global North as well as the Global South. We will study postcolonial theory as a tool to analyze these structures that were formed following the establishment of newly independent states in formerly colonized territories, and explore theories and practices of resistance to colonial and neocolonial violence. We will address material dynamics that perpetuate these neocolonial hierarchies, such as debt traps, agricultural commodification, and brain drain, and survey contemporary political issues such as forced displacement, migration, spirituality, tourism, gender, art production, and climate justice through the lens of postcolonial theory. A central theme of this course is the justification and rationalization of inequality through epistemic violence, skewed media representation, and narratives of cultural and biological difference. By applying a postcolonial framework to these issues, we will learn to critically evaluate political, economic and cultural power relations, develop analytical tools to identify the colonial and postcolonial structures that are invisibly reproduced across multiple domains, and recognize how many present-day challenges at home and around the world may be rooted in or linked to historical legacies of colonialism.

Requirements

Academic Integrity

Bard College Berlin maintains the highest standards of academic integrity and expects students to adhere to these standards at all times. Instances in which students fail to meet the expected standards of academic integrity will be dealt with under the Code of Student Conduct, Section 14.3 (Academic Misconduct) in the Student Handbook.

Accommodations

Bard College Berlin is committed to inclusion and providing equal access to all students; we uphold and maintain all aspects of Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990, and the ADA Amendments Act of 2008, and Section 3 of the German Disability Equality Act of April 27, 2002 (Federal Law Gazette I p. 1468). If you have a disability, or think you may have a disability, please contact the Disability

Accommodation Coordinator, Atticus Kleen, (accommodations@berlin.bard.edu) to request an official accommodation.

Requests for accommodations should be made as early as possible to ensure adequate time for coordination and planning. Please note that accommodations are not retroactive and may require advance notice to implement.

If you have already been approved for accommodations with the Disability Accommodation Coordinator, please arrange to meet with me outside of class so that we can develop an implementation plan.

Students may face extenuating circumstances related to various personal or external factors, which impact their academic performance. While these circumstances often do not fall within the legal framework of Disability Accommodations, Bard College Berlin is committed to supporting students experiencing such circumstances. A student needing a short extension or a replacement assignment because of an extenuating circumstance is encouraged to make arrangements directly with instructors if possible. If further support is needed, please visit the Bard College Berlin Accessibility page. Questions about this process can be directed to James Harker (j.harker@berlin.bard.edu) or Maria Anderson-Long (m.andersonlong@berlin.bard.edu).

Attendance

Two absences will not affect the participation grade or require documentation. After two absences, your participation grade will be impacted.

Per Bard College Berlin policy, you cannot miss more than 30% of classes, regardless of the reasons for the absences. The full Bard College Berlin attendance policy can be found in the Student Handbook, Section 2.8.

Assignments

1. Very brief reflections written in class on the topic of the session.
2. Research paper. You must have the topic approved by the instructor. You will submit the below-listed sections of the paper over the course of the semester, and turn in the final draft at the end. The final paper should be 3000-3500 words in length. Please submit your assignments via Google Classroom in Word format.
 - Topic and Research Question
